Welcome to Wildflower Country

Wildflower season in the Midwest is a breathtaking spectacle that draws nature enthusiasts from near and far. Located in the heart of Western Australia, this region bursts into vibrant life during the spring months, typically from August to October.

Popular blooms include carpets of Everlastings (Rhodanthe chlorocephala), the rare Wreath Flower (Lechenaultia macrantha), Pink Fairy Orchids (Caladenia latifolia), Yellow Pom Poms (Cephalipterum drummondii) and more.

Plan ahead

Planning ahead for a trip into wildflower country is important because the season is short, and the timing of peak blooms can vary each year. Many wildflower spots are remote with limited facilities, so being prepared with essentials is crucial.

It's also important to respect the environment by sticking to designated paths and minimising your impact. With careful planning, you can ensure a safe, enjoyable experience while fully appreciating the beauty of the wildflowers.

WILDFLOWER SELF-DRIVE TOUR

Experience the magic of wildflower season from August to October

Route 1
144 kilometres

The ideal scenic route to Coalseam Park

Coalseam Park is a must-see during wildflower season, with carpets of colour contrasted beautifully against the rich red earth and clear blue skies.

The park's diverse flora, including rare and endemic species, creates a mesmerising display that is both breathtaking and fleeting. This makes it an essential destination for anyone wanting to experience the natural wonders of Western Australia's wildflower country.

Points of interest along the way include Noondarumma Pool, Bindoo Glacier Beds, Kockatea Gully and Tenindewa Pioneer Well.
